In its carrier an engineer will probably at some point work in a company, any company. The role of the engineer in this firm can be really different, he can a project manager, he can be a technical expert, he can manage teams of engineers... No matter his position, the engineer will use tools at his disposal to do his work correctly. Recently a new tool is used in an enterprise : Games. But how can games be used in a company ? My goal, with this paper is to show how games are used today in moderns firms, how they benefit the company and what is the future of games in companies. To do so, I will get the help of this paper [1].
